SNOWFALL

Never Broke Again

I am a business management major looking to get into any career in management. I have worked in construction management and have some to very little experience within hospitality. I am interested in business management because growing up I am surrounded by family members working in management in different careers. Management is a field I'm familiar with, naturally I gravitated to the degree when I had to pick one.

Going to the University of Nevada, Reno was based on my decisions of going to a school away from home but also an affordable option in comparison to other schools. Being from Sacramento, Reno is not too far but far enough to get away and still get to see my family every so often. Some hobbies I have are playing music, basketball, and snowboarding. Recently I have had the chance to get back into working out and enjoy being active.

I am familiar with computer applications but I wouldn't say I could do anything too advanced with them. Navigating a computer is easy for me but technical wise I lack any deep knowledge of complicated commands in Microsoft Excel, PowerPoint, and Word. Applications I use the most are search engines and the three applications mentioned. My extent of their use would be for school. Writing papers and some big projects making slideshows and excel documents for information systems.
